Ag + Art tour brings art to farms across SC

Various counties are hosts each weekend in June

By Marsha Hewitt
Editor

The nation's largest farm and art tour is now in its seventh year in selected South Carolina counties.

The event pairs producers and consumers, with art thrown in for fun.

The Ag + Art Tour has grown from a few sites in York County in 2012 to more than 100 sites across 12 counties. Each farm or farmers' market has invited local artisans to perform and interact with the public. The artists include painters, potters, musicians, weavers, story tellers and a variety of others.

Clemson University Cooperative Extension Agribusiness Agent Ben Boyles of York County coordinates the event. "There are a lot of moving parts," he said. "Last year we had between 7,000 and 8,000 people visit farms over the four weekends in June."

The self-guided tour is free. Visitors are encouraged to see first-hand where their food comes from, interact with artists, purchase food and special items, and learn more about rural life. This year more than 200 artisans will be at the sites.

According to Boyles, the tour has touched more than 30,000 people since it started. "It's the largest free farm tour in the nation. It's unique because it brings in an art component. There's nothing like this in the country," he said. Many of the farms are not open normally to the public, and people who typically wouldn't get on a farm can have a unique experience.

Some farms may charge for on-site activities, but there is no admission fee at any of them. "Our core mission is to connect producer and consumer. We put a face with the food we eat and the art we enjoy," Boyles said.

Ag + Art is held each weekend in June. On the first weekend the event was held in Chesterfield, Darlington, Florence, Horry, and Kershaw counties.

Boyles encourages people to visit the website for details, adding that each county has its own page.

More Than Three Decades of Service

In my time of service as Commissioner I have had the privilege to work alongside some very dedicated individuals in the Department of Agriculture. One of those is Martin Eubanks, Assistant Commissioner for Marketing and Agricultural Services. Martin will retire later this month after 32 years at the Department. Since 1986, Martin has served in several key capacities. It's quite an understatement to say that we'll miss him.

Martin began his tenure at SCDA as a marketing specialist for the peach and watermelon growers and later proceeded to work on marketing and retail for all fruit and vegetable commodity groups. In that role he developed quite a network of growers, distributors, wholesalers and retailers. Many of his colleagues in the industry became and remain Martin's good friends.

Later, as the SCDA Senior Commodity Merchandiser, he facilitated volume movement of SC fruit and vegetable commodities through retail and wholesale channels in and beyond South Carolina. To fulfill this role Martin became a road warrior, attending trade shows all over to represent our farmers. Needless to say, his passion for local farmers and local food comes with a wealth of knowledge and experience.

Nutrition Director Wins Regional Recognition

The national School Nutrition Association has named Todd A. Bedenbaugh as Southeast Regional Director of the Year. He is the Child Nutrition Director for Lexington-Richland School District 5.

As a child nutrition professional for the past 25 years, Bedenbaugh works tirelessly to ensure that his district is providing quality food to students. Leading the only district to receive back-to-back $100,000 USDA Farm-to-School grants, he implemented the new "Farm to Five: Communities Thrive" program in 2016 that focused on gardens and greenhouses at three schools.

Students have planted kale, broccoli and cucumber seeds and then harvested crops to be incorporated into school menus. Bedenbaugh received funding from the SC Department of Agriculture to send teachers and staff on field trips to local farms and make upgrades to several school gardens.

Bedenbaugh started the District Education Foundation Golf Tourney to raise funds for the District Snack Pack Program. The president of the SC School Nutrition Association in 2016-2017, he organized four district-wide Chopped contests to introduce students to the culinary field.

In July, Bedenbaugh will be honored at the association's national conference in Las Vegas, Nevada. The School Nutrition Association represents 57,000 school nutrition professionals across the country. Visit www.SchoolNutrition.org/SchoolMeals.

June Celebrated as Beef Month

The South Carolina cattle and beef industry will celebrate "June as Beef Month" here in the Palmetto State. This industry is a top 10 agriculture cash commodity and contributes to new wealth and economic growth.

Thomas Legare, a cattle producer from Johns Island and president of the SC Cattleman's Association, noted that more than 3,200 producers raise quality animals on their farms. "South Carolina cattle producers care for their animals and land the same way they care for their families," he said.

Today's consumers can be assured of safe, lean and nutritious beef from producers. Darren Carter, a cattle producer from Ninety Six, is chairman of the SC Beef Council. He encourages the use of beef in meal solutions to get ZIP (zinc, iron and protein). "Lean beef is important to each individual and it promotes a healthy lifestyle," he said.

As the summer months begin, both Legare and Carter continue to promote beef to consumers, especially grilling for Father's Day on Sunday, June 17, as well as during the summer grilling season, which runs from Memorial Day through Labor Day.

Three Decades

It's no surprise, then, that Martin was directly involved in the creation of the Certified SC Grown branding program 11 years ago. Through his leadership, Certified SC Grown has more than 2,000 members and an 80 percent recognition by consumers in South Carolina. Its partner program - Fresh on the Menu - has nearly 400 restaurants. When you serve fresh South Carolina produce and products or eat at a Fresh on the Menu restaurant, you're quite literally enjoying the fruits of Martin's hard work.

I'd like to take a bit of credit here to say that I was smart enough to promote Martin to Assistant Commissioner in 2011. In this capacity, his leadership expanded to include all of our marketing, farmers' markets and inspection services.

In 2016, the Department was tasked with management of the SC Farm Aid program that provided relief after the 1,000-year flood in 2015. I asked Martin to head up that effort and, thanks to his work and that of many others, the Department developed a program and the necessary procedures to provide financial aid to nearly 1,250 South Carolina farmers in four months. That was a job well done.

Martin's leadership skills and accomplishments are certainly noteworthy, but it's his heart and compassion that make him a friend to so many. Martin is a giver, and he certainly has given so much to all of us who have been fortunate enough to work with him.

Like any of us connected with agriculture and all of its trials, Martin has always maintained a tremendous sense of humor and has always been quick to share it with us. Always taking his job seriously, but never taking himself too seriously. We'll miss that, for sure.

As our friend concludes his long, successful career at SCDA and embarks on a new chapter of hunting, fishing, and grandchildren, I say congratulations, Martin Eubanks, and thank you.
